For three decades, Senator Daniel K. Akaka has had the honor and privilege of working for the people of Hawaii, in Washington D.C. He brings with his current candidacy a deep and abiding love and understanding of our state. He also brings a first-hand understanding of the workings of government in our nation's capitol, respect from fellow legislators, legislative seniority, and hard-earned insight and wisdom based on his long tenure in both the House and Senate.

With the direction the Bush Administration is taking on the War in Iraq, national security and civil liberties, and its tax policies for the rich, Senator Akaka believes that Hawaii and this country needs strong alternative voices in Washington, D.C. to (1) accomplish a sound strategy for peace and establishment of a democratic government in Iraq, (2) question the use of secrecy and the abandonment of civil liberties for the supposed sake of national security, and (3) challenge the Bush Administration's proclivity to give tax breaks to big corporations and the wealthy.

Senator Akaka also understands the value of teamwork for a small state like Hawaii and has worked in close partnership with our Congressional delegation for the benefit of Hawaii's people. More than ever, Hawaii needs the kind of leadership provided by Senator Akaka. He will continue to represent the State in the manner which reflects Hawaii's people – with dignity, honesty, respect for others, and aloha.
